PASTOR DENIES CAUSING SUIT AGAINST GIRL

"If She Was Attracted by Me, I Was Not to Blame," Says Rev. W. H. Topping of Church Organist.

PARISHIONER SUES HER FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

He Complained That Minister Called Too Often, but Latter Says He Was Only Performing His Duties.

Rev. W. Hayes Topping, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Jennings, St. Louis County, which is greatly stirred by the $25,000 breach of promise suit of Adolph Kreis, one of the most active of the church workers, against Miss Mary Wilson, former president of the Christian Endeavor Society, and organist of the church, denies that the suit is due to any act of his.

He says that while he secured a warrant for the arrest of Kreis because of the latter's threats, he prevented the papers from being served, paying the costs himself.

The minister also says he tried to avoid coming between the two, whom he supposed to be engaged, that he was interested in Miss Wilson only as a Christian worker, and that if she was attracted to him he was not to blame for it.

Among the church members and other residents of the suburb the breach of promise suit is almost the sole topic of discussion. Everyone in the town knows Miss Wilson, Mr. Kreis and Rev. Mr. Topping.

The little church is suggestive of romance. It stands back from the street, and is in the lot adjoining the home of Mr. Kreis. Not far away is the home of Miss Wilson, while the minister lives a little more than one block distant.

The little church, a frame structure, has a tower in one corner with a belfry at the top. A board walk leads from the street. The building was used for many years as a meeting place for all denominations until the organization of the Presbyterian Church two years ago. It is painted a slate color, but lacks the rustic effect which a few vines might give it.

Mr. Kreis has ceased to attend services at the church since three months ago, when he says Miss Wilson broke their engagement, but he can sit in his window and see and hear the minister in the pulpit, and can even see Miss Wilson as she sits at the organ.

Tried Not to Interfere.

The Rev. Mr. Topping was seen in his study Friday. He is not yet 30 years old, is small of stature, of dark complexion and wears glasses. He is a Princeton graduate.

Pastor Topping said: "I am really no more responsible for this case than one who has never heard of it, though I have known all the time of the conditions."

"Dr. Nicolai of St. Louis asked me last December to take charge of the Jennings church and I did so. When I first came here I heard it generally reported that Miss Wilson and Mr. Kreis were engaged to be married. I understand now that Miss Wilson is denying the engagement. I was then informed by many, however, that they were engaged. I would have been a fool to attempt to step between them, even had I desired to do so."

"Regarding what Mr. Kreis has said concerning me, I can only say this: 'Miss Wilson was President of the Christian Endeavor Society of the

The Mysterious Stranger-ess

She walked across the border and calmly took her place With all the male defendants In many a "promise" case; Yes, took her place and stood there With calm, unruffled face.

A fair "Mysterious Stranger" She was, and nothing less; A fair "Mysterious Stranger"—Or is it "Stranger-ess"? At all events, she stood there, A sight, we must confess.

Where is the man who sued her For breach of promise? He— I'm sure you will admit it— Whoever he may be, Friend, foe, acquaintance, stranger, Is stranger far than she.

church and was the organist. There were many occasions when it was necessary for me to see her regarding church affairs. There were other times when my social duties as pastor required that I call. The church here has only 30 members and the pastor is expected to make calls of more than the pastor of a city church. I have never visited the home of Miss Wilson oftener than the church work and my social duties as pastor required.

She Urged Him to Call.

"Some time back I learned that Kreis had said I was visiting Miss Wilson altogether too often. I then saw him, explained the situation and told him that I would rather remain away if he insisted upon it. He told me to go as often as I wished. A short time later I heard he was talking about me, and I decided to stay away from the Wilson home. I did remain away for two weeks."

"In going to my meals I pass Miss Wilson's home six times a day. Often I see her about the lawn. After I had remained away for two weeks, I saw her near the gate one day as I passed. She asked why I was treating her so coolly, and I replied that she knew as well as I did. But she insisted that I keep on calling, and I have since gone there a number of times."

"It is a mistake to say that I caused Mr. Kreis' arrest. I did have a warrant issued against him, but it was never served. His friends interceded with me and I dismissed the case by telephone, later going in person to Clayton, before an officer had time to make the arrest. I paid the costs to prevent the service of the warrant."

"The fact is, I have not tried in any manner to step in between Miss Wilson and Mr. Kreis. Instead of that, knowing the conditions, I have carefully kept out of the affair as much as I could."

"The young lady has no attraction for me except as a Christian church worker. I do not know what attraction I may have for her. That is not for me to discuss, and if there is anything of the kind I am not to blame for it."

Miss Wilson refused to discuss the case, more than to repeat that she had never promised to marry Mr. Kreis. She said: "I do not want to say anything against Mr. Kreis. I don't think a Christian should do that. He always seemed very gentlemanly and he has been well treated here."

The petition, which charges misconduct, contains no names, but Attorney Abraham T. Frumberg, who represents the plaintiff, is authority for the statement that they will be inserted when necessary.

The use of cigarettes and liquor are some of the allegations made against Mrs. O'Connor.

Friends of Mr. O'Connor say that they knew existing conditions for some time, but that he was ignorant and considered the two men who will be named were his friends. One is spoken of as a member of a wealthy and prominent St. Louis family, the other as a "well-known lively stable keeper."

The climax came in March, when O'Connor was informed that his wife was in the company of one of the men. He went to the place named and a serious quarrel followed.

Mrs. O'Connor's beauty created comment wherever she traveled. Her complexion is fair and her heavy hair is black.

SWEETHEARTS YIELD TO PARENTS' COUNSEL; THEY'LL WAIT AWHILE

Miss Adele Traummiller and Her Colorado Springs Suitor Persuaded to Delay Plans of Marriage Long Enough to Assure Their Elders—They're Sure Now.

Love, for once in the history of the world, has listened to reason, and a wedding that was planned resulted in a long betrothal instead of the elopement with which young lovers so frequently answer their parents' objections.

The heroine of this peculiar story is Miss Adele Traummiller, 17-year-old daughter of Joseph F. Traummiller, manager of the Excelsior Brewery in St. Louis; the hero is Frank Stevens, 23 years old, son of H. H. Stevens, owner of the fashionable Alta Vista Hotel at Colorado Springs. The "villains," as some lovers may call them, are Mr. Traummiller and Mrs. Stevens, pere.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Traummiller and her two daughters, Misses Adele and Clara, went to Colorado Springs for the summer, and became guests at the Alta Vista Hotel. Mrs. Traummiller is a vocalist of rare talent, and that evening in the hotel parlors she sang. Among those who complimented her was Frank Stevens, the proprietor's son, and naturally Mrs. Traummiller introduced him to her daughters.

Immediately, so the young man has since said, he fell in love with Miss Adele; almost immediately, so Miss Adele has declared, she felt strongly attracted toward him.

Girl Wanted to Stay.

This was all very well—but it could not last. Mrs. Traummiller began to talk of going away, and thought of such a thing as a separation was unbearable to the sweethearts, and they decided that when Mrs. Traummiller and Clara did go away, Adele would remain behind as Mrs. Frank Stevens.

But as a dutiful daughter, Miss Adele confided to her mother the story of her love and her plans. Stevens also confided his love and plans. Mrs. Traummiller was surprised, and played for time. She said she would think it over. And that night she sent to Mr. Traummiller in St. Louis a long telegram, informing him of the details of the love affair.

Mr. Traummiller took the next train for Colorado Springs. When he got there he found no time. He summoned his daughter and Stevens before him. He said he had no objections, except that his daughter was still a child, with her education uncompleted, and Stevens was not much more than a "kid" himself. Why couldn't they wait? Let Adele go through her school course; let Stevens get further along in business, and let both of them spend a few years getting acquainted with other people to see whether they really and truly loved each other well enough to feel no ultimate regret at their present choice.

Then young Stevens' father entered the conference. He argued along the lines followed by Mr. Traummiller. Mrs. Traummiller also joined the enemy, and told how disappointed she would be if a mole became a married woman before she had been a young lady.

The tender hearts of the lovers were touched and they yielded. But they declared with much fervor that time would make no difference, and that as soon as they had atoned for the crime of youth they would wed.

It was "God bless you, my children," all the way around, and Mrs. Traummiller hurried back to St. Louis. He got her Thursday night, Mrs. Traummiller and her daughters went to Denver, which is not far from Colorado Springs, and will spend two weeks in that city and its neighborhood before returning home.

Jack O'Connor SUES HIS WIFE

Well-Known Ballplayer Asks Divorce From Woman Noted for Her Beauty.

Jack O'Connor, the well-known baseball catcher, formerly with the Browns, filed suit for divorce from his handsomely young wife, Mrs. Cora O'Connor, Friday.

The action, though expected since last March, caused much comment in baseball circles and among the large number of friends of the persons concerned.

The petition, which charges misconduct, contains no names, but Attorney Abraham T. Frumberg, who represents the plaintiff, is authority for the statement that they will be inserted when necessary.

The use of cigarettes and liquor are some of the allegations made against Mrs. O'Connor.

CLAYTON CHARGED WITH WIFE ABANDONMENT.

Slayer of Five and Assailant of More Than Twelve, Continues Assaults.

IS THOUGHT TO BE CRAZY

Cincinnati Police Are Making Desperate Effort to Arrest Enemy of Women.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CINCINNATI, Aug. 25.—While the police were still searching the territory surrounding Spring Grove cemetery for the mysterious assailant of Elsie McGrath, who already numbers five dead among his many girl victims, another Mrs. John Bruns, 22, was attacked at almost the same spot last night. Though in feeble health, Mrs. Bruns summoned all her strength, and managed to escape by an almost superhuman effort, even after grasping by the throat.

Mrs. Bruns today related a harrowing tale of her encounter. She gives the same description of the man that all others attacked have given. He is short, heavy set and rough looking.

"I was on my way home from Chester Park at 10:30 last night," said she, "when near the cemetery I became aware that I was being followed by a man, and quickened my steps. He overtook me, however, and was at my side in a few strides. At first he spoke nicely and pleasantly and I was not afraid. Suddenly his manner changed. It makes no difference where you are going, come with me this way," he growled, and made a grab for me.

"I screamed and started to run, and as he grabbed for me he tore my waist from my back. Then he grabbed me by the throat. I don't know how I did it, but I managed to escape from his clutches, and when I looked around he was gone. I believe he was insane, for I shall never forget that horrid look in his eyes, which bulged out in a most revolting way. They fairly blazed and burned into my very soul."

The latest outrage has aroused the people of that section to the highest pitch, and men are issuing orders to their wives and daughters not to venture out alone at night.

Mrs. Lippert sat on it. He pushed her off, but she sat on it again. He then struck her several times. Her screams attracted neighbors and he left. She still has the machine.

"COP" ACCUSED OF THEFT FROM DEAD

Patrolman Frank Morris, Under Fire, Denies That He Robbed Geo. Mudd, Suicide.

HAS A GOOD REPUTATION

Matter Will Be Looked Into by Board of Police Commissioners—Policeman Suspended.

Policeman Frank Morris of the Carr Street Station has been suspended while a charge of theft, placed against him, is being investigated. It is alleged that he stole a pocketbook from George Mudd, 1209 Franklin avenue, who committed suicide Thursday. The Board of Police Commissioners will hear the charge at its next meeting.

Policeman Morris was one of the men assigned to the case when Mudd's suicide was reported and he accompanied the body to the morgue. Joseph Engel, a laborer, 46 South Second street, says that he was standing on Twelfth street opposite the morgue when he saw a policeman, whom he afterward identified as Morris, come out. The policeman, he says, emptied the contents of a pocketbook into his hand and then tore up the pocketbook, throwing the pieces toward the inlet of a sewer at the curb. He kicked at the pieces as they lay by the curb, but when he had caught a Cherokee street car Engel investigated and found several bits of the purse. He collected them and took them to Chief Desmond. In one piece was found a trunk key.

Chief Desmond directed Capt. Johnson to investigate. The latter found the trunk key to fit a trunk that belonged to Mudd, while the pocketbook was identified by Mrs. Mary Mudd, mother of the dead man.

Policeman Morris denied positively that he had touched Mudd's body and declared that he could prove that Engel was in the room where the suicide was committed.

Capt. Johnson suspended the patrolman. Morris has been on the force five years and Capt. Johnson says he has been a very efficient patrolman. Mudd's body was found on the third floor of 1209 Franklin avenue, where he had shot himself in the head. He left a note for his family saying ill health was the cause of his action. He also left a will in which he gave his property to his mother and sister, including $500 deposited with a trust company.

The boat struck one of the Klondike stores, owned by the Bush Terminal Co., South Brooklyn, and in a short space of time the entire building was in flames. ### HAD ILLUMINATED YARD Globe in Street Interfered With Display and He Tried to Extinguish It.

While seeking to show special honor to Bishop Janssen, who was being welcomed to Belleville on his return from Rome, Barthel Chuse, aged 20, son of Peter Chuse, one of the trustees of St. Peter's Cathedral, was killed in front of his home, 301 Richmond street. In attempting to remove an electric arc light which marred the effect of Japanese lantern decorations in his own yard the young man received a shock which proved fatal.

The Chuse home was on the line of march, and the yard had been brightly illuminated. An arc light in the middle of the street partly spoiled the effect, and young Chuse tried to remove it. John M. Anselinger lowered the light by use of the reel at the pole and Chuse stood in the street to receive it. "Let it down about a foot further," Chuse called.

Anselinger let out a little more rope and then looking over to Chuse saw him falling. He did not see him touch the arc light, he says, but a blister as large as a dime was found on Chuse's thumb. He died within 15 minutes. The young man worked as an electrician's assistant in Mattoon, and was at home for a week's vacation.

Doctor Brigham Says

MANY PHYSICIANS PRESCRIBE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womanhood is not because it is a stimulant, not because it is a palliative, but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructor ever discovered to act directly upon the generative organs, positively curing disease and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures and physicians who have recognized the virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are fair enough to give credit where it is due.

If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ill, as they know by experience it can be relied upon to effect a cure. The following letter proves it:

Dr. S. C. Brigham of 4 Brigham Park, Fitchburg, Mass., writes:

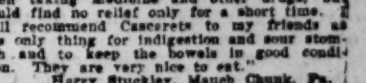

"I give you great pleasure to say that I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound very efficacious, and often prescribe it in my practice for female difficulties. My oldest daughter found it very beneficial for uterine trouble some time ago, and my youngest daughter is now taking it for a female weakness, and is surely gaining in health and strength."

I freely advocate it as a most reliable specific in all diseases to which women are subject, and give it heartily.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhea, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that bearing-down feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. No living person has had the benefit of a wider experience in treating female ailments. She has guided thousands to health. Every suffering woman should ask for and follow her advice if she wants to be strong and well.

"King Dodo" Will Reign at Delmar All Next Week for the Benefit of The Free Ice and Pure Milk Fund

Next week will be a week of weeks at the Delmar Garden Theater, where "King Dodo" will be revived for one week for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Free Ice and Pure Milk Fund. A liberal percentage of the receipts of the week will be given to the life-saving work of providing the sick babies of the tenement districts of St. Louis with free ice and pure milk.

This worthy charity has been generously aided by the people of St. Louis, but they have never been given so tempting an opportunity to assist it as will be given them next week, when they may see one of the best of the musical shows at Delmar and at the same time know that part of the money paid for admission will go to the meritorious work of distributing free ice and pure milk where they will save the lives of little people who would otherwise perish for want of these comforts and stimulants.

The Post-Dispatch is especially anxious to have the merchants of the city realize that this is a good opportunity for them to entertain their merchant guests and at the same time aid a deserving charity. For their convenience, special tickets, good for reserved seats, are on sale at the Post-Dispatch office, and merchants who buy them and send their visitors out to the garden will make the most of a good opportunity. Their guests will find the performance one of the best upon the musical stage, with the entire Delmar opera troupe appearing in it, and they will know that the money spent for the seats is assisting the Post-Dispatch hot weather relief work among the sick children of the poor.

"King Dodo" will open Sunday afternoon, and will be given every night next week and Wednesday afternoon. The benefit extends over the entire week, and it will be the biggest week in the Delmar season.

What Is Being Done.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In thanking you for check for $200, which has just been turned over to the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, I beg to advise that your generous co-operation in furnishing funds for pure ice and milk for the sick poor will enable us to continue the work for at least two months longer than we had originally contemplated.

Our Board of Directors insist that modified and sterilized milk for infant feeding is just as necessary in the winter months as in the summer months, and it is the earnest desire of the Board to continue the work the year round.

This can only be made possible by largely increased contributions from our philanthropic citizens. The officers and directors of the Commission have no other end to serve than to be helpful in saving the babies in the congested districts of our city. They not only work without compensation, but all are direct contributors to the fund and they are more than anxious to continue the work as long as the money can be supplied.

Over 2000 bottles are given out daily through the 20 distributing stations established by the Commission.

In Philadelphia, Chicago and New York the work is carried on during the entire year. More than $36,000 was raised in Philadelphia last year and nearly $20,000 in Chicago. Our Association has raised less than $2000 and of necessity will have to curtail its work unless additional money is forthcoming.

We have received many reports from physicians and those in charge of the stations testifying to the good work done. Numerous letters and communications come from mothers extending most hearty thanks for your generous contribution to this good work.

May I urge that you continue your appeals for the ice and pure milk fund most earnestly for the next few months. With best wishes, I am, yours truly,

W. H. McCLAIN,
Secretary St. Louis Pure Milk Commission.

A Successful Entertainment.

I hand you herewith $25.00 in coin and currency, the receipts of the minstrel and vaudeville show given under the direction of Mrs. P. T. McGlynn on the lawn at 215 North Spring avenue, Saturday, the 19th inst., for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Ice Fund.

The affair was a decided success in every way, being generously patronized, and those taking part in it acquitted themselves creditably.

I desire special mention given to the fact that the clever sketch men, Stahl

HOWARD HEIRS HOPE TO BEAT WOMAN'S SUIT

They Hold Mrs. Leafgreen Has Injured Her Case by Saying Man Who Married Her Was Cigar-maker.

SAYS 'PHONE MESSAGE TOLD OF HIS DEATH

She Tells of Seeing Him on Street Car and Brief Conversation—Bought His Picture at Gallery.

Mrs. William Leafgreen continued her deposition at 3 p. m. Friday, when the hearing of her suit to recover, as his widow, one-half of the $15,000 personal property of the late Laclede J. Howard, wealthy brick manufacturer, was resumed before Special Commissioner W. Scott Hancock.

She has told how she met and married the man known to her as Henry or "Charley" Howard, whom, she says, she now believes to have been Laclede J. Howard.

The heirs of the latter believe that Mrs. Leafgreen has greatly injured her own case by her testimony that the Henry Howard whom she married in 1883 was known to herself and others as a cigar manufacturer. Laclede J. Howard was President of the Evans & Howard Fire Brick Co. of St. Louis.

Mrs. Leafgreen is exceedingly nervous in testifying, and she has been vigorously with a lace handkerchief. She wears a black silk dress, with white lace collar and cuffs and a black chignon hat.

An interesting phase of her testimony was reached when she described the man known to her as Henry Howard. She said that at that time, in 1883, he seemed to be about 32 years old, was 5 feet 2 or 3 inches in height, dark complexioned, with thin hair and dark eyes.

The most dramatic development in her story was when she told of having met "Henry" Howard in St. Louis in February or March, 1903, after she had married again, believing him dead; how he followed her to a downtown dry goods store and talked with her for a while; how, later, when Laclede J. Howard died, she recognized his picture in the newspapers as that of her husband, Henry Howard, and of how some one told her by telephone that Laclede J. Howard and her husband were one and the same. The man whom she recognized, she said, had boarded the street car on Manchester avenue, near

Woman Who Says L. J. Howard Married, Then Abandoned Her

the works of the Evans & Howard Co. About the time that Laclede J. Howard died, she said, a person whom she believes to have been some friend who knew both her and Howard, called her up on the telephone and said:

"Do you know that the man who has just died is the man you knew in Palmer as Charley Howard, and that Charley and Laclede J. Howard were the same?"

The Henry Howard whom she married, Mrs. Leafgreen testified, was working in a cigar factory when they first met in Palmer, Ill., and he called on her two or three times. Then he proposed to her by letter and afterward in person. They were married in December, 1903, she said, by the Rev. W. H. Musgrave, Howard giving his name as Henry Howard. They were living in Litchfield, Ill., until she went back to her mother after he told her that their marriage was not legal. He then came on to St. Louis, she testified.

Mrs. Leafgreen said that after Laclede J. Howard's death she exhibited a photograph of him to her neighbors. "Where did you get that picture?" asked Attorney George R. Johnson, representing the defense.

Bought His Photograph.
The witness hesitated. "I just got it where it was taken," she said. "Finally,"

"How did you get it?" Mrs. Leafgreen became quite nervous. At last she replied:

"I went to a photograph gallery and bought it." Then she explained that she was sure the man was her husband that she desired to keep his picture.

Mrs. Leafgreen testified that, believing "Henry" Howard dead, she had married him in Aylerville, Ill., but divorced him in Denver in 1892 or 1893 and shortly after that had married William Leafgreen. Since she became convinced that Laclede J. Howard was the man who had married her under the name of Henry Howard, Mrs. Leafgreen said, she had called herself Mrs. "Laclede."

While "Henry" Howard was in Palmer, she testified, he did not have ready access to her frequently, but helped about Thiele's cigar store, this causing him to be spoken of as the "cigar man."

Evidence tending to show the whereabouts of L. J. Howard in 1883 has not been introduced.

After Mrs. Leafgreen had testified that she had married him in 1883, the defense, said that he was well satisfied with the developments in her testimony and that, possibly, he would not care to examine any other witness.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 25.—Three years ago Miss Hattie Wilkes of Omaha, an employee in a candy factory, placed her name and address in a box of chocolates. Yesterday she was married to Rufus H. Denton, who found the name in a box of candy in Manila, Philippine Islands, and wrote to the girl who placed it there.

In a spirit of fun Miss Wilkes answered the letter and a regular correspondence ensued. When Denton returned to the United States with his regiment and was charged, he made his way to Omaha and met Miss Wilkes. An engagement soon followed and Denton returned to the Philippines, where he had engaged in business in which he was very successful. Later he returned to California and purchased a fruit farm near Los Angeles.

The young people left for Los Angeles, where they will reside.

LETTER THREATENS DEATH TO HEBREWS

They Are Warned to Quit the United States or Suffer Consequences.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Phillip Cowen, publisher of the American Hebrew, yesterday received a letter threatening the Hebrew race with eviction from the United States, peacefully if possible, by force if necessary.

He received a similar letter a few months ago, but paid no attention. It was said in his office that several prominent men of that race also had received letters about that time, but had torn them up, thinking them the work of some weak minded person.

Receipt of yesterday's letter, considered in connection with the sending of boxes of explosives to Jacob Schiff and Gustave Frankfort, recently led the police, however, to regard the former letters in a different light. If more are received an effort will be made to trace them to the writer or writers.

"There is no existence, as you will better realize in the next year," the letter ran, "a powerful organization, which will rid America of the Jewish race. Wealth, power and numbers cannot save them. They must go, unharmed if they like, by force and utter destruction if necessary. The harmless infernal machine of the strong men, who leave no kill, but to awaken the people and enable as true expressions of persons to learn our sentiments. No Hebrew is to be killed without warning. Each will first have a chance to rid the country of his presence. If he remains after warning his destruction will be certain. It is believed that within years it will be as impossible to find a Hebrew on American soil as it is to find a reptile in Ireland."

"This is not the idea of a few mentally diseased cranks, but the determination of a multitude of strong men, who leave their country, their people and the Savior. Within 60 days you will hear of the sudden death of at least one influential Hebrew in this city, and another in Chicago. They have been warned."

The juice scattered all over the table, splattering on and staining the clothes of the boarders and burning Mrs. Jamieson's hands and face.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 25.—John Washburn of this city, President of one of the largest milling concerns in the world, predicts that the wheat crop of three states will be in the neighborhood of 200,000,000 bushels.

It is perhaps the most important utterance touching on the situation in the wheat fields of Minnesota, North and South Dakota that has been made since the approach of the harvest.

Mr. Washburn has just returned from an inspection of the grain country and was accompanied by A. L. Valentine, President of the Armour Grain Co., one of the foremost grain men in the world. ## DENEEN IMPATIENT WITH SEN. CULLOM

Governor Will Make Appointments Next Week Without His Co-Operation.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—The appointment of members of the State Board, all of whose officers are to be taken from Chicago, will be made by Gov. Deneen next week without the co-operation of Senator Cullom. The Chief Executive of the State is said to have grown weary of what he considers needless delay.

Congressman Lorimer has demanded full sway in the recommendation of Federal appointments and Senator Cullom is said to be wavering in his allegiance to him. It is said the Governor has delayed his appointments in the hope that Cullom would withdraw from Lorimer in the matter of Federal appointments and thereby keep the Deneen machine intact.

In addition to filling the County Boards the Governor will make several changes in the State Grain office. Congressman Lorimer and his colleagues are clamoring for Senators Cullom and Hopkins to recommend against the reappointment of Postmaster F. E. Coyne and other Federal officials, something that they are loath to do, as it is known that these men stand well with President Roosevelt and Postmaster-General Cortelyou.

MRS. PECKHAM HAS GONE TO EUROPE

Woman Whose Husband Is Under Arrest in Cotton Scandal Case Leaves New York.

OTHER PERSONS LEAVE

Go-Between Not Found by Deputies With Warrants From Federal Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Mrs. Sarah H. Peckham, whose name figured in the "cotton leak" investigation, is on her way to Europe.

She left the Imperial Hotel a few days ago, saying she would be in Europe the latter part of this month.

While it is denied that any effort was made to bring Mrs. Peckham again into the case, she having testified, there was much speculation as to the reason for her trip to Europe.

Before her marriage Mrs. Peckham, under the name of the Sarah H. Peckham Co., conducted a mail order business in Chicago. Bankruptcy followed and later Mrs. Peckham came to this city.

Mrs. Peckham was mentioned in the investigation by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. Her friendship for L. C. Van Riper, once the business associate of her husband, who is now under arrest, was mentioned. Van Riper was credited with giving the first information to the United States authorities that New York brokers had all the governmental crop reports, especially as to cotton, long before they were officially issued.

Mrs. Peckham went to Washington and told all she knew, it was said. Her going to Europe, however, has caused speculation as to whether her arrest is in any way contemplated.

Moses Haas, the alleged go-between in the cotton leak, was not at his Wall street office yesterday. Marshal Henkel said his deputies had a warrant.

The first ad of the series appears on another page of this paper. I'd like to have you read it and see if you don't agree with me that the name given the Frisco Road to Chicago is indicative of the superb service it provides for its patrons.

To be honest with you, I didn't originate the name—I simply voiced the sentiment of everybody who has ridden on the Frisco Road to Chicago.

The balance of the ads will appear in this paper every Monday and Friday for some time to come. I'd like to have you read them.

If at any time you think any of them could be improved, I'd like to have your suggestion. If I can use your ad I'll give you a ticket St. Louis to Chicago and return.

CONSUMPTION YIELDS TO NEW VEGETABLE JUICE

Compound Discovered by Dr. John F. Russell of New York Proves Efficacious in Treatment of Dread Disease.

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE TO MEDICAL PROFESSION

Almost All Domestic Vegetables Used in Preparing Extract Which Must Be Kept on Ice and Used Fresh.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—With a request for professional secrecy, the management of the New York Postgraduate Hospital has sent to the physicians of this city a circular announcing the discovery of a vegetable fluid which is working marvels in the cure of consumption.

The cures it has effected are positive and complete, the patients in each case showing absolutely no signs of a recurrence of the disease.

The credit for the discovery belongs to Dr. John F. Russell, who is at the head of the hospital staff of physicians in charge of the hospital annex.

Up to July 15 as many cures had been effected at the annex as during the entire year of 1904.

Eleven persons who were looked upon as "sure death" patients recovered completely that they now show absolutely no signs of the disease. Fifty others are on the rapid road to recovery.

The efficacy of the cure is all the more astonishing on account of its simplicity. The "medicine" consists simply of a compound of raw vegetable juices. Heretofore when the ravages of the disease have been checked by other means the lesions of the lungs continue. This is not the case where the new formula is used. In almost every instance the patient increases in weight and his general health is restored.

That the vegetable juice therapy is not a wild or visionary one has been demonstrated to an entirely disinterested body of doctors.

A Disease of Malnutrition. Dr. Russell began his experiments upon the basis that pulmonary tuberculosis is a disease of malnutrition and that he could displace the old theory of drugs and specific medicines by substituting proper food, hygiene and exercise.

He gathered equal parts by weight of potatoes, onions, beets, turnips, cabbage and celery. Later on he added sweet potatoes, apples, pineapples, carrots and parsnips. Still later rhubarb (ripe plant), summer squash, tomatoes, spinach, radishes, string beans and green peas in the pod.

The results of the administration of this juice to tuberculous patients in the hospital was so satisfactory, not to say astonishing, that the hand machine was discarded and a power machine installed for grinding the vegetables, and a cider press was used for extracting the juice from the pulp.

A large quantity of juice from the pulp. A large quantity of juice from the pulp. A large quantity of juice from the pulp.

The entire course of experiments seemed to demonstrate that the cooking of vegetables destroys all enzyme action on the conversion of starches to sugar in the system.

Elements of the Compound. The analysis of this mixed vegetable juice, which was conducted under the supervision of Dr. Russell, showed the following results:

	Per cent.
Water	92.50
Carb.	1.00
Disaccharides (cane sugar, etc.)	0.81
Monosaccharides (glucose, etc.)	2.04
Proteins and peptones	Trace
Fat	0.40
Essential oils (volatile)	0.11
Essential oils (non-volatile)	0.04
Coloring matter	0.22
Alkaloidal matter	0.11
Cellulose	0.21
Malic, succinic and oxalic acids	Trace
Volatiles (calculated as acetic)	0.24
Tannins	Trace
Protein (nitrogen multiplied by 6.25)	0.97

In communicating his discovery to his fellow-doctors, Dr. Russell expressed his belief that the cure of consumption should be taken out of the hands of the specialist and placed under the supervision of the general practitioner.

The details of his successful management, he said, "are as easily within his command as the details of the management of any other common disease, such as typhoid fever, for example."

ST. LOUISANS SPIN ALONG COAST IN AUTOS TO SEE PEACE ENVOYS

Cyrus P. Walbridge, D. E. Francis Jr., Blodgett Priest, Robert Goltra and Vincent Kerens Among Portsmouth's Recent Transient Visitors.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
HOTEL WENTWORTH, PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 25.—St. Louisans are leaders in the new fad of automobile touring from other seaside resorts to Portsmouth for a glimpse of the Japanese and Russian peace envoys and a study of the place that is likely to become historically famous as the scene of one of the world's most important negotiations between two great powers.

Among the number is Cyrus P. Walbridge, President of the Business Men's League of St. Louis, Republican candidate for Governor of Missouri last year. Mr. Walbridge is spending the summer at Hyannisport, Mass., but finds time to take an automobile spin to this place now and then, arriving in time for luncheon or dinner at the Wentworth. On the occasion of his most recent visit last week he was accompanied by his son, Cyrus P. Walbridge Jr., a student at Amherst College. He comes over in his own auto, and is an enthusiast on motor-car travel.

Blodgett Priest, son of Judge Henry S. Priest of St. Louis, is at Rye Beach. Several times he has run over to Portsmouth in his big four-cylinder machine, and last Saturday he brought with him a party of young people, arriving just in time for the Saturday night hop at the Wentworth. He makes the run from Rye Beach, eight miles from the Wentworth, in 20 minutes.

Mr. and Mrs. David R. Francis Jr. came down from Biddeford Pool, Me., by rail last Wednesday, to see the first day's play in the annual Wentworth tennis tournament. Both are enthusiastic autoists, and took an auto spin through the adjacent countryside while here. Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Joy of St. Louis accompanied them to this place. In addition to the St. Louisans who come speeding into Portsmouth on their auto cars, one St. Louisan has lately been the place from the sea. He is Robert Goltra, whose beautiful yacht, the Illina, came into New Castle Harbor recently. Mr. Goltra spent the day at the Wentworth and weighed anchor that night.

Find Diplomats Sociable.
Vincent Kerens, son of Richard C. Kerens of St. Louis, is also a Wentworth visitor, and has done considerable automobile touring in this part of the country. The St. Louisans and others who come here from other summer resorts find the Russian and Japanese diplomats very gracious and sociable. The heavyweights of the peace conference, Mr. Goltra, Kerens and their immediate associates, are far too busy to give much time to society, but the lesser lights of the international gathering mingle freely with guests at the Wentworth hotel and entertainments, and have created a favorable impression.

Automobile touring in this part of the country is delightful, the roads being almost equal to those of Long Island. Most of the traveling is done close to the beach, skirted by the best drive-ways. Daily at luncheon time a dozen or more automobiles are drawn up in front of the hotel piazza, and machines are whizzing by to Newcastle or Portsmouth at all hours of the day and night. On either side of the Wentworth the road drops abruptly, as the hotel town is situated on a rocky bluff that gives first upon a rocky beach and then slopes to the sea. Amateur photographers are here in plenty, eager to get snapshots of the peace envoys, and they prepare for action whenever a new automobile is seen approaching.

Automobiles ordinarily bring their touring clubs with them, and at crowded hours this gives the Wentworth the appearance of one of the famous hostilities in France.

ARMY QUARTERS MAY BE SHIFTED CHICAGO AND PLACE ANOTHER HERE.

Plan to Move Local Office to Chicago and Place Another Here.

DIVISIONS TO RE-FORM
Southwestern District Centering St. Louis Will Include Missouri and Kansas.

Members of the general staff of the United States Army are much interested in a discussion of impending changes which, it is said, will involve a change in the location of two of the present army division headquarters.

The division headquarters in question are those of the Northern division, now located in St. Louis, and the Southwestern, at present in Oklahoma. It is said that the Northern division headquarters will be transferred to Chicago and those of the Southwestern division brought to St. Louis.

The reason given for the rumored change is that the supplies necessary for the Northern division can be shipped more conveniently and its business transacted more speedily from Chicago, while St. Louis is the natural business center and distributing point for the Southwest.

In the event that the Southwestern division headquarters are brought to St. Louis, it is said that Missouri and Kansas will probably be taken from the Northern division and placed in the Southwestern division, as belonging most naturally to that division.

Col. H. A. Green, Chief of Staff of the Northern division, now located in St. Louis, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday:

"The question of the changes is now being considered by the general staff, but nothing has been decided yet. Whatever orders are issued will come from the Secretary of War. It is about likely in general that the changes will be made."

MISSOURIANS INVITED.
Congressional Delegation Asked to Talk Statehood.

MUSKOGEE, I. T., Aug. 25.—Senators Stone and Wagner and the entire Congressional delegation of Missouri have been asked to make addresses at the Separate Statehood Convention, in session here Sept. 5, by Chairman Murray of the Missouri delegation. The same invitation has been extended in Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and Kansas and Senator Burkett of Nebraska and Gov. La Follette of Wisconsin have also been invited.

It has been announced that the convention will elect four congressmen at large, and it is suggested that a platform and opened fire on Little, one bullet striking the latter in the right leg. A banner is held at Carr Street Police Station, and Little White is a prisoner at City Hospital.

Lipton Still Wants Cup.

BACHELOR TAX IS DECLARED RIGHT

Young Women Debate Question and Mere Men Decide That Affirmative Wins.

DECISION IS UNANIMOUS

Christopher Columbus Was Used as a Horrible Example by Debaters.

Bachelors SHOULD be taxed. The question was definitely settled Thursday evening at St. Leo's school hall, when four young women debated it and a jury composed of two married men and a widower decided in favor of the tax.

The decision was unanimous, and therefore argument ends. It is understood that the two bachelors on the jury immediately leveled and paid a heavy tax upon themselves.

The debate was under the auspices of St. Leo's Ladies' Auxiliary of the Knights of Father Mathew, and the school hall at Twenty-third and Mullany streets was filled with as many parishioners as could crowd into it.

The judges who decided the contest were put in a conspicuous position, so everybody in the audience could see them and be assured that they were paying attention and not moved by undue influences. They were E. R. FitzGibbon, John J. O'Brien, F. J. Keeney, P. G. Downey and M. A. June.

The debaters were Miss Sadie M. Ritchie of 2332 Mullany street and Miss Anna E. McAdams of 3933 Kennerly avenue on the affirmative side and Miss Bertha M. Bruening of 1701 Pendleton avenue and Miss Alice E. Colligan of 3938 Cass avenue on the negative side.

Miss Colligan brought Christopher Columbus into the argument. She contended that he was probably a bachelor; for if he had had a wife and children they would undoubtedly have kept him at home instead of allowing him to wander to the edge of what the people of the late 1400's thought was a flat world supported on a "Titan's shoulders."

Miss Ritchie would not "stand for" the Columbus story, and promptly eliminated Chris from the list of bachelors. She averred with much pomposity that the man who discovered the country which was to become famous as the home of baseball and the Sunday id was a married man. She did not produce a marriage license to prove her statement, nor did she go into details as to how many times he was married and whether he had to support his wife's relatives or let them support him; but she declared he was married, and so there!

Then Miss Ritchie showed magnanimity. She declared that a certain class of bachelors should be exempt from the tax. This class she would define as those who had asked a girl to marry, and been given the mitten, or words to that effect. They, having done all in their power to butt into matrimony, should not be penalized because they stopped short of burglary, which would have been their only recourse after being coldly turned down by the object of their ardent affections.

The jury considered the matter carefully—or at least made a substantial bluff at so doing. Each member frowned as though in deep thought at least twice during the deliberations, and they argued the matter most thoroughly. The married men wanted to see the punishment in the verdict, but the bachelors thought that was something that should be left to the court—if there was a court.

On that rock they split, until the married men, looking at their watches and noting the size of the hour, hurriedly agreed to the bachelors' demands and let the verdict go without reference to its amount of punishment.

The debaters were great success, and it is deemed to have been one of the most important subjects at early dates.

2 WORKMEN HURT AT NEW BUILDING
Pulley Fractures Skull of One and Plank Injured Back of Other.

Two men were injured while at work on the new building being erected for the Henry McNichols Furniture Co. on Market, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, Friday.

The first, Henry Oliver of 1327 Market street, was struck by a 20-pound pulley that fell 30 feet to the first floor, causing a fracture of the skull. He was sent to City Hospital.

The second was William Kane of 5108 South Broadway, who was struck by a six-foot plank that fell down the elevator shaft, injuring his back. He was sent home.

DIVORCE MILL ACTIVE.
Large Number of Mismatched Couples Seek Separation.

Other divorces are: Mary Stone against Sidney R. Stone, alleged desertion; Edna Hargis against Walter P. Hargis, alleged desertion; Mollie A. Noble against William H. Noble, alleged desertion; and Samuel W. Wall against Wallace against Samuel W. Wall, alleged desertion; Harry Jeffrey against Emma Jeffrey, alleged desertion; James L. Craig against Virginia Craig, alleged desertion; Frances Grimes against Oscar J. Grimes, alleged desertion, and Eliza J. Rhyne against B. T. Rhyne, alleged desertion.

A convention of colored mechanics convened Friday morning at Blumensack's Grove, 620 North Broadway. The convention is for the purpose of negro delegates from Missouri and adjoining states.

Girl Debaters Who Argued as to Whether Bachelors Should Be Taxed

Should Bachelors Be Taxed? YES. NO.

By Miss Anna E. McAdams of 3933 Kennerly Avenue. They are selfish, vain and penurious. They get the idea into their bald heads that every young girl and every old girl, for that matter, is in love with them. They ridicule their married brothers, and smile indulgently upon them as if they thought them devoid of all sense.

They do not seem to understand that they should be compelled to assume a responsibility of some kind. A bachelor, like a caterpillar, is something one wants to avoid; a married man is like a caterpillar transformed into a beautiful butterfly.

They enjoy exemption from all responsibility, and the revenue derived from the tax should be used for the maintenance of an orphanage or widows' or spinsters' home.

By Miss Bertha M. Bruening of 1701 Pendleton Avenue. They do not get as much service from the State. Their school tax is the same as their married neighbors, who have large families. There are too many young girls who will keep a young man calling for four or five years before they will answer "Yes" to the question my opponents would compel every bachelor to put to some girl.

It would be no more just to tax bachelors than it would to provide a state of limitation for engagements. Because if you levy a tax upon unmarried men you will have more marriages of convenience.

Some of the greatest men in history, notably Michael Angelo, Sir Isaac Newton, Washington Irving, George Peabody, the philanthropist, and John Howard Payne, who wrote "Home, Sweet Home," were bachelors.

BOATMAN SAW BODY OF WOMAN
Believed to Be That of Waitress Who Was Drowned a Week Ago.

Searching parties are still on the lookout for the body of the supposedly drowned young woman that was seen at 11 o'clock Thursday morning in the Mississippi River between St. Genevieve, Mo., and Fort Gage, Ill., by Capt. J. M. Totten, master of the steamer Ste. Genevieve. It is believed that the body will prove to be that of Miss Stella McMillin, the young waitress who was drowned a week ago while bathing with a party of friends at Gabaret Island at the same time that Frederick A. Churchill lost his life.

Capt. Totten says that the floating object, which was seen to be approaching the vessel, was recognized as the body of a woman, dressed in a bathing suit, and that a red scarf or handkerchief was tied about the body. In order to avoid a collision with the body, so close was it when it was first seen, the vessel was turned from its course. The body passed underneath the wheel and disappeared.

A searching party was hastily dispatched in the steamer's yawl, but a trip of five miles down the river failed to reveal the body to the searchers again.

Members of the ill-fated party think that the red scarf may have been tied about Stella McMillin's body at the suggestion of Churchill, who was teaching her to swim.

Deputy Coroner Path closed the Churchill inquest Thursday and returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

"BLUEBEARD" HAS LED 50 WOMEN TO THE ALTAR

Police of Several Large Cities Are Looking for Dr. Witzhoff, Multi-Bigamist, Who Poses as a Swiss Dentist.

MARRIED VICTIMS TO OBTAIN THEIR MONEY

Sums Taken Range From $100 to $10,000—Indictments Found Against Witzhoff at New York—Many Aliases.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Dr. George A. Witzhoff, a suave talker and of refined appearance, about 40 years old, is sought by the police of several cities on a charge of bigamy. In his matrimonial transactions the doctor described himself as a Swiss dentist and chemist.

The police declare that the record of Witzhoff as a bigamist is larger and more daring than that of Bluebeard Hoch, the convicted Chicago bigamist and wife murderer, now awaiting death and wife Benjamin Franklin of 145 Nassau street is authority for the statement that Witzhoff married the daughter of a former Mayor of this city, and that after a short honeymoon deserted her and has not been heard from since. Franklin refused to divulge the name of the young woman.

Franklin represents several of the women complaining of Dr. Witzhoff's alleged bigamous marriages.

"Witzhoff has 50 wives scattered in all parts of the United States," said the lawyer, "and before we get through with him it will be shown that he operated by system. He swindled his numerous wives out of amounts ranging from $100 to $10,000. A large number of these women will not appear or prosecute Witzhoff, fearing the notoriety attached to the scandal."

District Attorney Jerome has taken the case before the grand jury and an indictment for bigamy was found against the doctor. The detective bureau has sent out an alarm for the arrest of the wholesale swindler.

Complaints have been received from Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Buffalo, Cleveland and other cities, that the same doctor, working under aliases, has courted wealthy women and is suspected of entering into a large number of bigamous marriages.

For a time the doctor's Swiss doctor was charged to Johann Hoch, but was proven false by investigation.

Dr. Witzhoff has many aliases, among them Dr. Geo. A. Miller, George Westhoff, Dr. Winniford and plain Mr. Witzhoff. He is a good dresser, but does not assume to be a Beau Brummel. His methods, according to the police, are more like those of those of Hoch. The doctor pretends to have $10,000 or $100,000, and is searching for a good woman to make his life happy and settle down.

Dr. Witzhoff has not been seen in New York for several months, but the attorneys claim to have a clew which may soon lead to his arrest.

WANT JEROME FOR MAYOR

Citizens' Union Committee Instructs Conference Committee to Work for Him.

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH.
NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The City Committee of the Citizens' Union last night by a vote of 20 to 16, instructed its Conference Committee to work for the nomination of District Attorney Jerome as Mayor.

A split is threatened in the Union. The City Committee of the Republicans sent out formal invitations to all the anti-Tammany organizations to unite in a fusion movement declaring against Tammany for its subservience to the public service corporations.

He Is Named to Succeed Late Congressman Marsh.

BUSINESS, Ill., Aug. 25.—James McKinney of Alton was nominated for Congress on the second ballot yesterday in the Republican Convention held to select a successor to the late Congressman B. J. Marsh.

There were five candidates on the first ballot and each got the vote of 20. Hancock was the only county without a candidate and it voted for Chandler.

AUTOMOBILES AND PEDESTRIANS.

The Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court has handed down a decision of some interest to pedestrians, drivers of vehicles and automobilists. "A person, whether adult or infant, has the right to assume that the operator of an automobile will exercise care and respect the rights of pedestrians in turning the corners of streets. Due care is required under such circumstances that the vehicle should be slowed down and operated with care."

The suit was one brought for the killing of an eight-year-old child by an automobile belonging to a transportation company. The lower court held that if a person allows his child to be in the street unattended he is responsible should the child be injured.

The pedestrian, adult or infant, may assume that due care will be taken by driver or chauffeur, upon whom the responsibility is placed.

It is a reasonable rule. In Missouri drivers are required to slow up on approaching a crossing and of course an automobile would be held to the same rule.

The notion that children have not the benefit of this rule, which seems to have been entertained by the lower court in this New York case, on the ground that the parent should not allow his child to be on the street unattended, is barbarous, or at least antiquated, besides being a gross perversion of humane thinking. The Supreme Court of Missouri has laid down the rule in terms unmistakable that a child cannot be guilty of contributory negligence. The entire responsibility is placed upon steam railroad companies for accident to children and probably the rule would not be relaxed in favor of automobilists. The courts of other states will probably take this view when similar cases come before them. It is required by both good service and good logic to say nothing of the humane tendency of legal development.

Evangelist Morgan goes back to England "assisted at the way the so-called Christian business man keeps his pledges to his God and his church." There are more surprises in store for British evangelists visiting the United States.

MARRIED IN HASTE.

The seriousness with which some persons regard this thing called matrimony is well illustrated in the case of R. J. Bayer of Rochester, N. Y., and Miss Jeannette Peltree of Cleveland, O.

They arrived at Colorado Springs on the same train, having become acquainted en route. Tourists were clamoring for rooms. There was a single unoccupied room at the Spaulding Hotel. Both could not occupy it; both craved it. What was to be done? Nothing easier. That the conventionaries might be observed, they took hasty counsel together, sought a minister, were married and returned in triumph with their certificate. Then they got the room.

"Sweet are the uses of adversity." Varied are the uses of matrimony. But the divorce court has but one function.

Mr. Rockefeller's sole will not be softened by going barefoot.

A SUPERIOR WOMAN'S ANGER.

Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman attacks in a current magazine what she calls the "conventional assumption" that women are "better" than men.

"Patent superiority in one virtue," says Mrs. Gilman, "we may readily grant them—that of chastity. This is genuinely theirs by nature, as well as being carefully fostered artificially by man. Man did not invent it. He found it in a state of nature, admitting that they are thus 'morally' superior by nature, there remains a damaging qualification—that it is for their interest to be so."

If Mrs. Gilman would, in some happy hour when she is not angry—let us hope she has such shining intervals of time—take her pen in hand and let the ink flow mixed with good humor, the result would be more persuasive. The extract quoted contains a simple truth, generally acknowledged. But it tastes bad; it is bitter; there is gall in it. There is so much gall in it that the truth may not be perceptible to many honest readers.

Reformers need not be ill humored. They have a melancholy task in life, because a woman who dedicates herself to the high calling of making other women as good and wise and she herself is sure to be misunderstood. But she would escape many sharp stings if she would be patient and not allow herself to be angered by the faults and follies of those who are not yet qualified to rise to her level.

Hatred between Great Britain and Germany would be even more foolish than the hatred between Germany and France has been.

THE LOGIC OF JINGOISM.

In a letter to the Berlin Nation recently published Mr. James Bryce told the people of Germany that all "normal" persons in England desired peace with the subjects of the Kaiser.

At the same time German publicists are assuring the people of England that there is no animosity harbored by the Germans toward their English cousins.

But the press of both countries continue a bitter campaign of vituperation. The National Review has been screaming against the German eagle for the past two years and the London Spectator joins in the outcry. Other periodicals of credit and standing evince the same jingo madness. The clamor is too general to be ignored as abnormal. In plain terms the English demand that the Kaiser's feet be destroyed before it gets big enough to be formidable to England's sea power.

But the Germans are not behindhand. At a meeting of the Pan-Germanic League Gen. von Liebert made a speech full of thunder, and like a true German, he grounded his argument on high philosophic grounds: "We cannot help the fact," said the General, "that all the great changes in history have been accomplished through tears and through blood—that is simply the progress of history."

The conclusion is: The more tears and blood the more progress. No blood no progress, no tears no improvements in civilization.

The logic is not unfamiliar, but not often is it stated with such brutal frankness.

It does not occur to these delirious jingoes that progress may be in spite of bloodshed and tears. Their mode of thinking is savagely childlike; post hoc, ergo propter hoc. The day follows the night; therefore the night is the cause of the day. It is an easy road to the inferno of war.

Mr. Bryce may be right in thinking that all normal persons in England oppose war. But if abnormal persons are in the majority and if they control the press and the Cabinet, what are normal men going to do about it?

Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson is determined to break into Congress. Our $800,000,000 navy may be nearer than it seems.

THE ASEPTIC SALUTE.

Writing from Constantinople, Turkey, Dr. Valentin Nalpaspe, physician to the Persian Embassy in that city, urges the Post-Dispatch to aid him in his endeavor to convert the world to the Oriental style of salute, in place of the hand-shake, which he charges with the dissemination of disease.

The Oriental salute advocated by Dr. Nalpaspe is known as the "temenah." This is a Turkish word, signifying certain gestures which together form the salutation. It is accomplished by placing the right hand upon the heart, then upon the lips and finally upon the forehead.

This triple gesture Dr. Nalpaspe says, signifies that the person saluted is cherished in the heart, his name is upon the lips, and his welfare always in the thought of him who makes the salutation.

Dr. Nalpaspe is doubtless inspired to this crusade by the fact that he resides in a city which is said to be the most mixed in population of any on earth. While the Turks themselves, following Mohammed's strict rules, wash three times a day, there must be a large number of persons in Constantinople whom one would prefer to salute by "temenah" rather than any sort of bodily contact.

The enthusiastic doctor has our good wishes in his work as far as the great unwashed Orient is concerned. But Americans will doubtless decline to adopt "temenah," in spite of its picturesqueness and grace. They would be sure to think, while performing it: "You, dear friend, are in my heart, upon my lips and always in my thought—but I am afraid to touch you."

MAGNATES AND THE REST OF US.

Has not the reader—whom we suppose to belong to the natural order of human beings—noticed something in the mind of the very successful business man that sets him apart? The old saying that the gods help those who help themselves has often a new and dangerous meaning in the mind of such a man.

Enormous and brilliant are his energies, often his success is so prodigious as to astonish even himself, and there soon settles upon his consciousness a sense of the beneficence, to him, of the unseen, mysterious powers. The gods have helped him, indeed. His God has helped him. He is this exceptionally successful person, he belongs to this peculiar caste of the very or the preposterously rich, by "divine right." In the division of profits, why should those be too anxiously and ethically considered by him who, as yet, have shown no signs of belonging to the divine aristocracy of worldly success and earthly wealth? He understands, of course, that those who are indispensable to this success of his must be taken into account. But the ordinary mortal—well, the ordinary mortal must take care of himself, even though the favorite of the divine powers stands in the relation to the ordinary mortal of a sworn and confidentially trusted trustee.

Well, there are signs that the ordinary mortal is beginning to take care of himself. It would seem to be high time.

PUBLIC SCHOOL LIBRARIES.

From the Kansas City Journal.
There was spent last year about $5,000 for public school libraries in Missouri. This is a fraction more than 3 cents per child. Many districts spent more than that amount and others spent nothing. Every district should spend the 5 cents required by law and many times more if possible. Books are the best educators after experience.

JUST A MINUTE

The Gallant Jones.

It has been discovered that Admiral Paul Jones was a Scotch Rite Mason, belonging to a Paris lodge called the Nine Sisters.

The great Paul Jones—
God rest his bones!—
Was in his day a gallant tar,
And o'er the seas
He sailed at ease,
And on his foes left many a scar.

Now, bless us all!
We learn that Paul
Not only gave his foemen fits,
But that, forsooth,
In his gay youth
He was a ladies' man, as well.

So much did Paul
Admire them all,
So much he kept the dears in mind,
That when he sought
A lodge, we're taught,
"Nine Sisters" was the one he joined.

O gallant Jones,
In gladdest tones
For daring deeds our chorus swells!
Though great in war,
We love you more
Because you loved the damozels!

What I'm a ruler for!

You know I can't make war.

THAT the Cabanne druggist who displays a sign over his soda counter—"The Lights Off on Sundays"—is right up to date; or maybe he is a smart clerk.

IF the white paint keeps slipping off of the once deep-red Exposition building, Music Hall will soon resemble the Grand Trianon at the World's Fair.

Two cars going opposite directions met on a single track Sunday afternoon. The motormen held a debate, each man upheld by his passengers. The west-bound man had former Mayor Storches and one of East-St. Louis' best-known barbers aboard. The other was loaded with thirsty St. Louisans. The barber backed up his motorman and the former Mayor laughed. The west-bound man and the thirsty St. Louisans were compelled to live through a back-up and a wait.

DID IT EVER HAPPEN TO YOU--

LAUGHTER.

By Nicola Greely Smith.

WHAT is the greatest gift the Fates can bestow upon a woman? That is, with what quality must she be endowed to go through life with the greatest comfort to herself? Beauty, the unsophisticated may answer; others, charm; and, perhaps, one or two may hazard the suggestion, brains. I should say that a sense of humor is Fate's best as well as rarest gift to womankind.

Have we not all wished when some deep-throated modern muse of Tragedy poured her troubles into our patient ears that she might be suddenly enlightened as to the ludicrousness of her pose?

Of course, she has her little tragedy. Nearly all of us have, of one sort or another. But if we are wise we keep it locked up in our hearts and refrain from crying it out on the street corner.

After all, the true spirit of tragedy is that embodied in the Byronic sentence:

"And if I laugh at any human thing,
Tis that I may not weep."

And it is the laugh with which the woman with a sense of humor relieves the tenacious moment of life. Of her own life, that is; for very generally the troubles of other people make a stronger appeal to her than her own, which alone she can afford to laugh at.

She may hear suddenly of a case of extreme poverty and feel the tears start in her eyes and her heart burn with impatient warmth to go to its relief as the distressing details are recited to her.

And yet there may be in her own mind a half-forgotten memory of similar stress in her own life that she accepted with serene philosophy and that she would have thought herself crazy to cry over.

With a sense of humor the myriad little ills of life are blunted into harmless, and even its tragedies dwindle into evils easy to be borne. Without it life lacks perspective and is like one of those Chinese drawings in which the nearby mountain and the distant molehill are all beautifully of a size.

The tragic pose is one that naturally appeals to women, but whether the general absence of a sense of humor in womankind is the cause or the effect of their love for tragedy it would be hard to say.

Few of us are born with the gift of laughter, but we should all strive earnestly to cultivate it, for it is of all human endowments that which tends most to the happiness of others and to our own.

NEW YORK EDITORIAL OPINION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—"Mr. James Hyde has sold his fine country place," says the World, in a broadside editorial urging prosecution against the Equitable corruptionists. "So far as he is legally can, he is said to have sold the control of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, which also he inherited. He has sold his private car. He is selling his interest in the many banks, trust companies and other subsidiary corporations which the Equitable policy holders' money has made valuable."

"Altogether, he will turn into some millions of dollars in cash profits from the ownership of $50,000 par value of Equitable stock, limited by charter and by law to $354 of annual dividends. "With this money, which should have been distributed in dividends to 600,000 policyholders and to their dependents, Mr. Hyde intends to go to Paris, where, with his wealth and his tastes, he will find a more congenial home than among the American people."

"Is he to go in peace?" "Apart from the moral reproach which has been brought upon the German colonial administration, this hawking of the Hereros should be a costly business," comments the Tribune. "The losses of men have already amounted to more than seventeen hundred, and

LITTLE STORIES OF THE DAY

By Rose Marion.

A pretty luncheon given shortly before the close of the Vacation gave the men a half pint of cold beer. The men were talking at close range and John Marion and Walter Miley, the Indian Territory missionaries, theirs is the duty to take clothing to the red man—had become the managers of a race that was to be pulled off the next day at 10 o'clock from the Cottage in Forest Park.

The men and boys in the big place walked and straggled and rode into Forest Park the next morning until 300 of them were there, but Kansas and Texas were unrepresented.

Tom Perkins of Durant, carrying with him a half pint of "old-lifter," sat down under a tree to wait for happenings, but he was asleep before the race was run.

William Hargrind Glasgow, riding his pebble-tailed polo pony, volunteered to search about the park for the runners, fearing that they had made a mistake in the place selected.

He scouted for six miles, found men who were waiting for the race and sneaking glimpses at the Cottage through tree branches, but not the principals. Eugene Lewis rode around in an automobile, but was no more successful. Walter Miley talked to his dozen Indian Territory guests of the beauties of Forest Park until he wished that a rainstorm would come up and settle the race.

No one offered to substitute and at dinner time the spectators went home. Explanations were not demanded of the Texan and the Kansas next morning, but dozens of other persons said, "Regular custom of mine, always, out to the park Sunday mornings."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Women in Street Cars.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
In relation to the letter "A Woman" discussing the way men should treat women in street cars, I wish to state that "woman" did not at all "strike the root of the matter," by her manner of addressing men, calling them a lot of pigs and a herd of bores. Ladies do not use such language. Neither would a lady show so much egotism to want a man who is working hard during the day to give his seat to her or to any other woman who perhaps is going to visit a friend, where she may have sufficient rest.

As to me, seeing an old lady or a working woman on a car, I shall always let her have my seat, but never that sort of woman, who simply on account of their sex, think themselves entitled to make unreasonable demands.

THEODORE CHARLEY.

Is Chivalry Declining?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Please publish this open letter regarding two letters recently published in your paper as "Constant Reader," who said hats off in streets cars, is partly right, i. e., he should have said, "woman" is a better word than "lady" in today's world and headed by the editor, "A Poor Opinion of Man," says she is sorry to see so little chivalry in the world today. She forgets that men don't place such confidence in women in general today, in public, as they used to.

Five Cents a Block.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
A few days since a lady in a confused hurry got into a Suburban car on Locust street, intending to take an Olive street car. As soon as she discovered her mistake she asked the conductor to let her off. Though she rode only one block, the conductor demanded her fare, and rudely compelled her to pay it. Unfortunately the lady was too disconcerted by the conductor's number. She consoled herself by the fact that the dividends of the Suburban would be increased by a nickel.

Sunday Closing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I want to tell how glad I am that some few, at least, are stating their views in favor of Sunday closing, and thank the Post-Dispatch for publishing such reforms. I am an American, not a White Ribboner, nor a Methodist, and am not controlled by any Kentucky "local option" brought in by the white whiskey is needed to warm you if killed, etc. (I then recommend pepper, he recovers without either). I believe Mrs. Richter and the other women who are in an American city and State. What is one of the things St. Louis is noted for? Beer. Is not that a sickening thought? We know that Germans make kind neighbors and industrious citizens, but if we have to have them, why do they try to interfere with our views on the liquor question? Add to Rose's "God bless Dr. Palmore and Gov. Folk"—grant that Missouri will not only close saloons on Sunday, but every day in the week. I grew up in a saloon town and lived there long enough to see the wonderful change "local option" wrought in the following generation of boys.

Objectionable Women.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
If Dr. Palmore wants to be harsh with women folk, why doesn't he say those suggestive décolleté females of the saloon-window beer pictures?

REBEKKA

A GIRL OF THE GHETTO

By IVAN WHIN

COMPLETE IN SEVEN CHAPTERS.

CHAPTER V.
The Class Beauty.

WHEN Rebekka graduated no exceptional honors were bestowed upon her. Scholarship was not her strong point. Then, you must remember, her night and Saturday work in the store and the distraction of being engaged to Abbie.

Had the customs of colleges obtained in her class she would have received one honorary distinction, for it was acknowledged that she was the most beautiful girl in the school.

Her figure had filled in the last year, her cheeks had grown plump and the big dark, long-lashed eyes no longer dominated her face. Her complexion was dark with warm tones and creamily perfect. Her mass of wavy, black hair was very tractable and she dressed it with skill and effectiveness.

Her face was never dull and her scarlet lips parted often in smiles that showed the milky whiteness of her finely regular teeth.

Because of good humor and an almost pathetic desire for friendship she was, also, the most popular girl in her class. Her pulse was assured; the Oriental blood had given her more maturity than her companions. They looked upon her as an elder and deferred to her in many ways.

Thus it was that she became an honored guest in the homes of her fellow pupils. Mary Bascomb was one of her most adoring followers and Rosalie Fensch grew green with envy seeing the Bascombs showering attentions on Rebekka when they had persistently ignored Rosalie, though she lived but two doors away.

Henry Albers was Mary's cousin and lived in her home. He saw Rebekka one morning at breakfast. She had won a holiday from work and was spending Saturday and Sunday with the Bascombs in Westminster place.

Henry was late and the others were at table. He paused in the doorway staring at Rebekka, struck by the richness of her beauty.

Mary caught sight of him and rose laughing.

"Oh Henry come meet my chum. Rebekka this is my cousin, Henry Albers. Miss Rubin, Henry."

He nodded awkwardly staring still and not seeing the slim, strong beautiful hand the Jewish maiden offered him until Mary shook him out of his stupor, railing at him.

His evident admiration was as wine to Rebekka. Her cheeks glowed and her eyes were alight. She excited herself to please and pined him with all her maiden craft.

Such a willing victim was never found. It was love at first sight and each succeeding sight but strengthened the flame.

Rebekka found this simple-hearted big blonde fellow wonderfully attractive. He was opposite her in so many ways she found him exhilarating. Abbie could talk of nothing but business; Henry never talked of business. Each had a fascination for her and the thought that Henry loved her did not make her hours in his company less sweet.

Abbie was sure the bottom was dropping out of his scheme. He could see it all now, he said. Rubin had found the son-in-law who would be able to take Rebekka into "high society" and was quietly arranging the match.

"There is no hope for me," Abbie said disconsolately gazing at the beautiful girl bending over her cash tab. His arms ached to embrace her; the sight of her burned his eyes and dried his mouth at a fever.

A great anger toward Rubin awoke in his breast.

"Where would he be if it wasn't for me?" Abbie demanded of the thin Air. A plan of vengeance came to him and he grasped it eagerly.

"I'll show him," he said. "I'll make him say 'Please, Mr. Goldschmidt, marry my Rebekka,' before I'm through with him."

A Vacation in Your Mind

To the many who cannot afford the time or money for holidays, the "dream cure" is, according to experts, a most desirable thing.

The "dream cure" is in no way connected with Christian Science, although it bears traces of that fashionable craze. It is more closely akin to the doctrine of the mental scientists, a growing body who do not mix up religion with the mending of fractured bones.

The "dream cure," as explained by a mental scientist to an Express representative on Saturday, is a fascinating study in itself.

"Let us begin," he said, "with a very commonplace hypothesis.

"The majority of people, I believe, have the power, on retiring for the night, of saying to themselves: 'Tomorrow I must be up at 7 o'clock to catch that train.'

"The majority of individuals, I say, can not only say this, but do it. Then why not say a step further?

"Let the individual say to himself: 'Tomorrow I will get up at 7 o'clock, bright, cheerful and hopeful. I will look upon the great worries of yesterday as trivial.'

"A great many people can do this if they try. But that is not all. By experiments I have made with myself and from the close study of others equally interested I have found that it is quite possible to wake up from a self-imposed dream as refreshed and happy as if

MOOSE, TOO, INCREASING

Man Photographing a Buck Gets a Surprise and Also a Ducking.

KINGMAN, Me., Aug. 9.—Sportsmen who visit Aroostook this fall to hunt deer and moose will find that these animals have increased until they are as thick as rabbits in the Green Mountains of Vermont. The increase has been so great, in fact, that the farmers in the outlying regions are greatly concerned for the safety of their crops.

At Sweet's Camp, on Molunkus Lake sixteen miles north of here, unparalleled numbers are reported, and more moose are beginning to come in from the heavy timbers to the West. Up to this season moose have seldom been

A New York man and his wife, who have been spending several weeks at the lake, counted sixty deer feeding on lily pads and water lilies. The search of the deer for food is the cause of much trouble to the fishermen. Mr. Swett, who is an authority on deer and their habits, says that he cannot account for the increase, except that the game laws and better feeding may be responsible.

Deer Tamer Than Ever.

The deer are tamer this summer than ever before and the number of hunters is steadily increasing. Generally the bucks keep well back in the big woods while the antlers are in the velvet stage. They are turning their horns by contact with brush, but during the month of June and July in August they are much more tame during the fall feed. This is taken to mean that the supply of food in the heavy timber is not equal to the demand for growing antlers. Many hunters report that they appear along the lake shore daily.

Payette Brooks, chief guide at Moose Lake Camp, who arrived here two weeks ago, look over the ground and locate deer, said to a World correspondent that he had never had more experience had he seen deer so plentiful, and he prophesies that the hunting two deer this fall will be a poor shot," he said. "The animals are tame and will be easy to shoot. I will take up the Big and Little Molokuni and the others are fairly alive with them."

"Speaking of moose," Mrs. Sweet said: "We generally look for them in the heavy woods to the north of here but they are coming into the lesser timber and will be taken without difficulty. Many have been taken in the mountains and finding signs of them on both shores of the lake."

Mrs. Sweet saw a cow and calf on the shore of the lake and said that they stayed there for nearly an hour. Then, after nosing about the log cabin, they leisurely went away.

Buck Wrecks Cabin.

About a week ago an enthusiastic amateur hunter came from the coast to photograph a buck by flashlight. He figured in a jacklight in the glow of a full moon. The animal was in the cloudy night he jacked a buck in a cove. The animal, fascinated by the glare of the flashlight, came within 20 feet of the photographer, was able to paddle up within 20 feet of him.

With the camera, he set off the calcium, and in the blinding light caught a glimpse of the buck charging straight at the camera. The animal was startled by the sudden bright and was evidently bewildered, or instead of turning toward the camera he turned away from the shore of the lake. The canoe lay directly in his line of flight, and as the craft was small and light, the animal was able to entangle the photographer, his enthusiasm rapidly cooling, took to the lake.

When the buck struck the craft, upset it, and made for shore. The jacklight was extinguished, the camera was thrown away, and the photographer. Once on land the buck turned, stamped and disappeared.

After feeding Mars, cover have been taken in the day time, but sucking has proved both dangerous and unproductive of results. One man, who simply saw two green eyes, set off his flash and later discovered that he had an excellent picture of a loon resting on the water.

STATE CASES HOLD FEVER DOCTORS

Relax in New Orleans to Give Attention to 800 Outside Patients.

CONTROL CITY SITUATION

Dr. White Says Quarantine May Be Raised, but Advises War on Mosquitoes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 25.—Frost alone will exterminate the fever in Louisiana, outside of New Orleans, in the opinion of the health authorities, who make no hesitancy in saying that the situation is beyond their control. New Orleans will place in effect today a strict quarantine against the remainder of the State.

Over 200 new cases are expected to be reported today by Dr. Stark, the health officer in charge at Patterson and at Levee, at the mouth of the Bayou la Fourche. At Amelia, in Assumption Parish, where no cases had previously been reported, 10 new cases were announced yesterday, and it was stated that there had already been 50. In the State, outside of New Orleans, there are now believed to be over 800 cases.

The sugar belt district is apparently thoroughly infected. At Delleville plantation, a mile and a half from Patterson, another new focus has been discovered, with three suspicious cases. Other cases include two at La Fourche Crossing, two at Port Barrow, two at Good Hope plantation, one at Strose, one death: three at Hanson City and three at Ellendale.

In control at New Orleans.
In New Orleans the health authorities believe they control the situation. Thursday there were 44 new cases and 7 deaths, a creditable showing. Total cases to date, 1600; total deaths, 226; total cases under treatment, 287.

Report up to noon today, 19 new cases and 3 deaths.
Dr. J. H. White, in charge of United States Marine Hospital operations, has declared his belief that quarantine may relax with impunity. Dr. White attributes the late falling off of new cases to the general fumigation and from mosquito killing of last Sunday, but urges that this work be kept up once a week until frost.

"We started with probably one hundred unknown foci," said Dr. White, "five times the number that the Havana health authorities admit would swamp them and create an epidemic in that city. The records show what has been accomplished against overwhelming odds."

Prof. Robert Boyce of the Liverpool School of Tropical Diseases of Liverpool, England, who has just arrived, is here to study conditions and methods for the benefit of science and the British institution.

Up to last night there had been 107 cases discharged as cured out of the total of 1600 cases.

The death rate is abnormally low, being but 14.13. The general death rate for New Orleans, including all causes, is about 24.

If all houses are properly disinfected and screened there are reasonable hopes of a complete cessation of yellow fever on or before Oct. 1. The message of hope given by Surgeon White to the meeting that filled St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and over which Bishop Beaumont presided, if the citizens will but do this, the doctor said, they will deserve the commendation of the civilized world.

It is anticipated that when the authorities feel that their system is perfect there will be an effort to weed out the cases of malarial and dengue fever from actual yellow fever, and when that comes to pass the evidence will be clear how successful has been the work of controlling the disease.

Gov. Blanchard continues his efforts to keep the wheels of trains moving in Louisiana. He has put himself into communication with railroads wherever there is an interruption to service, and has ascertained that the roads are anxious to maintain service, if permitted to do so by the various committees.

To Investigate at Patterson.
President Souther of the State Board will go to Patterson, La., on Saturday, to investigate the conditions. The people of that town would like the State Board to take entire charge, and it may do so.

Mississippi City, Miss., is now under martial law, and no one is allowed to leave or enter the city. The health officials have been assured of the hearty co-operation of Gov. Vardaman, who has placed the entire State militia at their disposal. A number of new cases have appeared in that vicinity. In Mississippi City there are now 24 cases, including one new case, reported yesterday.

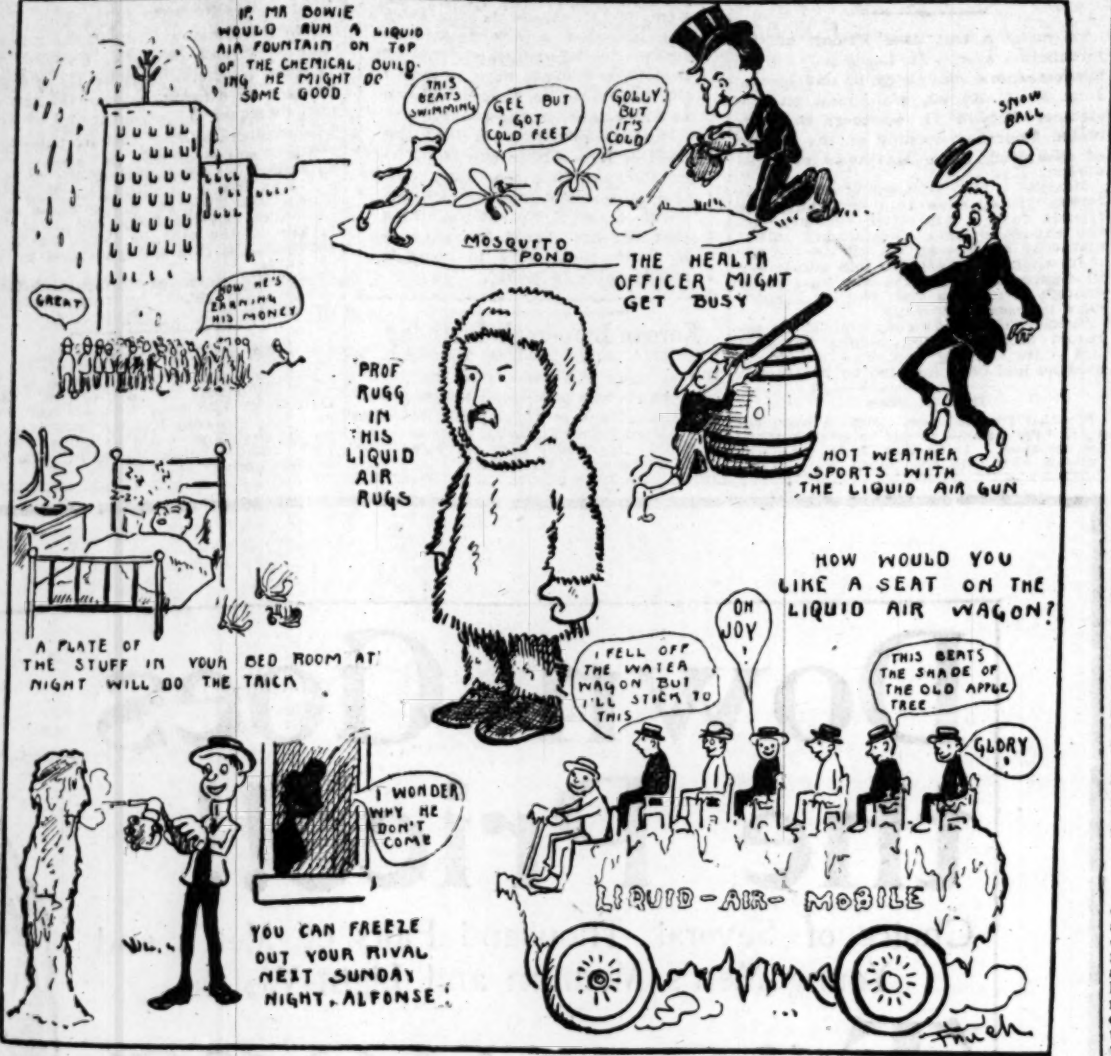

MURPHYSBORO, ILL., HAS DECLARED A QUARANTINE.
MURPHYSBORO, ILL., Aug. 25.—The Murphysboro Board of Health and city officials established a quarantine last night, which detains all visitors without health certificates five days.

Carpenters Get Increase.
BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Six thousand union carpenters of Boston resolve an increase of wages under the decision of Judge George T. Wentworth, to whom an arbitrator the employers and unionists submitted the question of new working agreement. Judge Wentworth grants an increase of 10 cents an hour to 40c, or from 30c to 40c for an eight-hour day, and a half an hour instead of a 3-hour workday for all shop and mill hands.

W. K. Vanderbilt Has Gout.
NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—A dispatch from Hudson River says that W. K. Vanderbilt is confined to his room at a hotel in that city. He is said to be suffering from an attack of gout.

Comforting Hot Weather Ideas Suggested By Prof. Rugg's Liquid Air Demonstrations on the Columbia Theater Stage This Week

There is a reason why St. Louis has not perished from the earth this week—the hottest week that the coolest calculator in the city can recall. The reason is not far to find. It is over at the Columbia Theater, where Prof. Rugg of the University of Illinois, is giving demonstrations with liquid air. Liquid air is the coldest substance known. It is 50 degrees colder than a dog's nose, and 27 degrees colder than the feet of a timid poker player. The people down on 'Change, who have been trying to freeze each other out of the market until they don't mind rather extreme cold, had had Prof. Rugg appear down there Thursday and give his demonstrations, and it is understood that hereafter liquid air will be used on the floor. A dash in the face with a tumbler of it will make the most tenacious broker on the floor "let go." Over at the Columbia, where the demonstrations are something new, vaudeville, a singular condition of affairs has existed all week. Frank Tate sits in a front box with his Great Dane overcoat and his earmuffs on, and his feet on a hot brick. One of the actors went out to get a hot toddy, and when he came on his breath hung on his chin like an amber locket. The orchestra tried to warm the house up last night playing "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," but Prof. Rugg poured a half ounce of remarkable things, too.

"YELLOW BERRY" LOCAL MARKET AFFLICTS WHEAT LEADS THE BELL

Agricultural Experts Discover Disease of the Cereal Not Hitherto Observed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ABERDEEN, S. D., Aug. 23.—According to Professors Lee Clever and Chittick of the Agricultural Department, the wheat crop of the United States is menaced by a new disease which, while it does not destroy the grain, does damage to the quality of the grain. The professors are traveling through the wheat belt of the country from Texas to the Canadian border, and they report that the new disease, which, for lack of a better name, they designate as "yellow berry," is prevalent to a greater or less extent in all the States, being more extensive in Kansas and Nebraska than in other States. Some fields in South Dakota are affected, but not seriously.

The disease consists in a yellow spot on the wheat berry, sometimes covering half the berry. The disease changes the color of the wheat to yellow, and the berries are smaller and lighter in color. The experts estimate that a field of wheat affected by the "yellow berry" is worth only 75 cents a bushel, while a healthy field is worth 1.00 a bushel. The disease has been found in all the States, but it is most prevalent in Kansas and Nebraska. ## AUTOROSIS IS NEW NERVOUS DISEASE

It Makes the Haughty, Reckless Chauffeur Timid and Fearful—In Chicago.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Chauffeurs in Chicago and Illinois have incorporated as the Automobile Chauffeurs' Benevolent and Protective Association of Illinois.

A new disease, "autorosis," which has appeared in Chicago, will be investigated by the association. It is an ailment confined to the chauffeurs, and it is said physicians cannot explain it. It is a combination of nervous breakdown and electric shock. It begins with a burning sensation in the head and a dimness of vision. This is accompanied by a dull ache all over the body and constant fear of danger—even a shadow on the roadside being sufficient to cause the chauffeur to swing on his brake.

After steadily growing worse for several days, the chauffeur becomes as timid as a child. He handles his car even in daytime like a novice and then, becoming thoroughly disheartened, takes a rest of several days, only to have the symptoms recur when he takes out his car again.

SON IN PANAMA, SHE ENDS LIFE

Mrs. Susan Nicolai Drinks Carbolic Acid at Her Sister's Home.

Mrs. Susan Nicolai, a widow, 49 years old, living with Mrs. Kate Brunst at 1023 North Eighth street, was found dead Friday in the kitchen at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary Kelly, 1429 Francis street, with an empty one-ounce bottle that had contained carbolic acid on the floor by her side. Mrs. Nicolai had gone to spend Thursday and Friday night with her sister. She had not given a hint of a determination to end her life. Her body was found by her sister, Mrs. Kelly, when the latter went to the kitchen to prepare breakfast.

It is believed to have caused Mrs. Nicolai to take the poison. She has a son who is employed as an engineer on the Panama Canal, and about two weeks ago she made her will, Mrs. Brunst says, presumably disposing of quite a considerable property which was said to belong to her.

The police were notified of her death, and the body was taken to the morgue.

Bishop Whom All Belleville Welcomed Home From Rome

RT. REV. JOHN J. JANSSEN.

BISHOP OVERCOME BY CITY'S WELCOME

Chancellor Leads Mgr. Janssen to Residence, Exhausted by Joy of Return.

Rt. Rev. John J. Janssen, Bishop of the Belleville diocese, was welcomed night from a journey to Rome and three months' travel in Europe. There was a parade through decorated and illuminated streets, red fire, fireworks and speeches.

The Bishop, who had been entertained in East St. Louis by Vicar-General Cluse since Wednesday night, was escorted to Belleville on a special electric car by a reception committee composed of the clergy of the Belleville Catholic churches, Mayor Kern and citizens.

The party left the car near the western city limits and entered carriages. That in which the Bishop rode was drawn by four horses and was profusely decorated in purple.

The Bishop and the reception party were escorted through Main street to the congregation of St. Mary's Church and parish societies. At Race street, the congregations of St. Peter's Cathedral and of St. Luke's Church and the societies attached to them fell into line.

The parade then moved through the principal streets, with bands playing. The parade ended at St. Peter's Cathedral, which was illuminated, and opposite which was an electric sign bearing the word "Wilkommen."

Mayor Kern delivered an address of welcome on behalf of the city, and George C. Reuban spoke in German on behalf of the diocese. The Bishop spoke a few words in a low voice, saying he had just come from the Holy Father, who sent his pontifical blessing. He expressed his thanks. This concluded the formal exercises.

The priests present then crowded around the Bishop to kiss his ring, but Chancellor Hagen, who was master of ceremonies, escorted the Bishop as soon as he could to his residence across the street, as he was exhausted by the fatigue of travel and the pleasures of his welcome.

Frank Bux was grand marshal of the parade, and August Bartel and Theodore Wessel were his assistants.

John R. McKenna, watchman on the steamer Corwin H. Spencer, was arrested Thursday evening on the charge of assaulting Jesse Matthews of Henderson, Ky.

Matthews, who is stopping at the Jefferson Hotel, says that he and some friends took a trip down the river on the excursion boat Wednesday night and that he was struck by the watchman when he refused to join some men in a game of cards. He was hurt badly enough to make a visit to City Dispensary necessary, he says.

Special Officers Durney and Burke arrested McKenna just before the boat left on its evening trip. The watchman said he had been insulted by Matthews.

GAVE VERDICT AGAINST DEAD

When William Whitehead did not appear in Circuit Court at Edwardsville Tuesday to defend his interests in a suit brought by a former partner in the saloon business a judgment by default was rendered against him by the court.

Whitehead's failure to appear was explained by the finding of his body in a schoolroom at Collinsville Thursday. There was evidence of carbolic acid poisoning and the body had apparently lain in the schoolhouse a week. A verdict of suicide was returned by the coroner.

Domestic trouble and financial difficulties are thought to be responsible for the suicide.

KIRKWOOD WATER FAMINE IS ENDED

The water famine at Kirkwood ended early Friday morning. The exact time at which the water began to run is not known, but the water is now running, although the pressure is below the normal.

Kirkwood has an arrangement with the water company to pay for the water used only when the pressure reaches 60 pounds. The rate of pay is $1.25 per day. It was stated yesterday by Alderman Marvin that the pressure according to the contract, Kirkwood will not have to pay for the water supply Friday unless the pressure is greatly increased before noon.

Water Commissioner Harper said Thursday that he had been informed that a muskrat or a Mississippi catfish was the cause of the water famine. It was thought that the animal had gone into the intake pipe at Mona, Mo. When the pipe was taken out Thursday afternoon nothing but mud was found in it. The cause of the failure is not yet known.
